

EAGLE FEATHER RESEARCH INSTITUTE

LATEST NEWS

6/1/08

Eagle Feather Research Institute as an outlet for uncensored research was conceived in the nineties by Prof. Arnoldo Carlos Vento. For the previous thirty years, the research of Prof. Vento had been following a line of discovery of information that heretofore had not been allowed to be published. What became evident was information related generally to persecuted groups of different cultures, was distorted or misrepresented due to political and dominant cultural bias.

In an age of information where news, facts and stories are continuously slanted or manipulated, too often we do not get objective and impartial reporting because of political, racial or religious reasons. Research indicates that this has been present since the beginning of Western culture and the underlying factor has always been politics. In a materialistic world, money is the driving force behind Power and Politics and it has repercussions to all of the Institutions within it. The end result is text that is driven by those forces of control.

The goal of Eagle Feather Research Institute is to present factual cultural information that is not political; rather it purports to go beyond the superficial layers of information and question the validity of sources. Only in this manner can we get to the foundation and the valid source for appropriate disclosure of facts. There are a number of research projects that are projected for the near future that is of academic as well as historical value. Some of the items have archival value and are unpublished to date. They include photos, articles and information on cultural and historical events. A book revealing an autochthonous worldview, philosophy and cosmology of pre-Columbian cultures is among the future projects. These will be announced in our News and Tips sections as they become available.

Arnoldo Carlos Vento, PhD
Executive Officer